Three Day Executive Protection Medical Course

This course is specifically built to be hands on for the protection professional. During this course we address a variety of issues you may face while performing protection details both inside and outside of the United States. We provide gear solutions for team members who are constantly on the move and even situations that may require long term care, i.e. extended care after injuries from natural disasters or even sudden illness. In addition to treating clients for medical issues, we will also discuss how to better take care of YOU, the protection professional in order to maximize your performance, enhancing your protection capabilities.

This course will be led by John Trentini, M.D., Ph.D. our Director Of Travel Medicine & Evacuation. Dr. Trentini brings over 15 years of real-world emergency and travel medicine. He has extensive experience as an expedition physician in areas of Asia, Central and South America, and Europe. He is responsible for consulting directly with our clients and coordinating with our specialist partners, assisting with all travel medicine and evacuation needs. He conducts pre-trip medical screening, helping to integrate client's personal medical profiles with specific medical intelligence in the areas where our clients travel.

*Each student will be provided an IFAK (Hemorrhage Control Kit) to use after completing the course

* Each student will receive a NAEMT/TECC Certification
